

Figure 1: Excerpt from Harry Beck's map of the London Underground, 1933 [1].

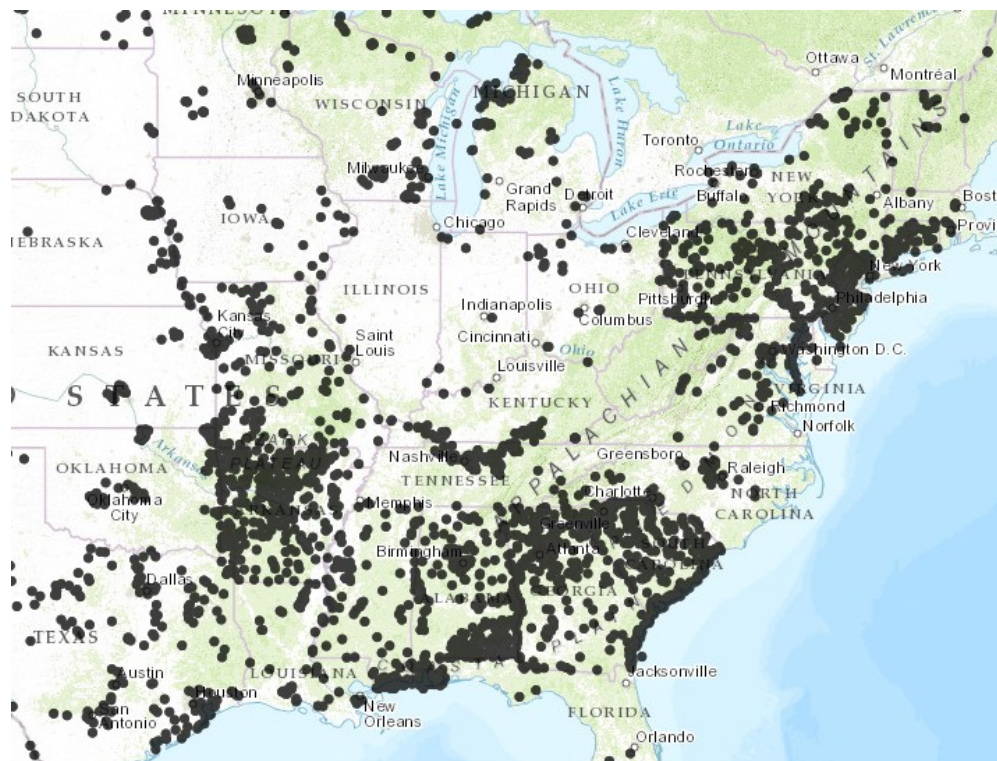

Figure 2: Locations in the eastern United States of testing sites where concentrations of nitrogen and phosphorus are measured. Map created based on data from the Water Quality Portal [2].